MAN WHO KEPT WOMAN CHAINED IN CONTAINER KILLED SEVEN

A South Carolina authorities said on Saturday that Todd Kohlepp, the suspect they arrested before discovering the body of a man whose girlfriend was found chained alive in a storage container, had confessed to killing six other people. The confession came a day after the woman who was found in the container told law enforcement that there were four bodies buried on the site. Spartanburg County Sheriff Chuck Wright said on Saturday night that Kohlepp had admitted to killing four people at a motorcycle shop in 2003 and also led authorities to the site of two more bodies buried on his South Carolina property. Wright said more bodies could be found, without elaborating. On Friday a body was found the 100-acre property in the town of Woodruff, northeast of Greenville, Spartanburg County Coroner Rusty Clevenger said. REUTERS

US-BACKED SYRIAN ALLIANCE DECLARES ATTACK ON ISIS IN RAQQA

A U.S.-backed alliance of Syrian armed groups said it had launched an operation to retake the northern city of Raqqa, the de facto capital of Islamic State in Syria. The new offensive ratchets up pressure on the militant group at a critical moment, with its fighters already battling an assault by Iraqi security forces on their remaining Iraqi stronghold in the northern city of Mosul. A statement issued by the U.S.-backed Syria Democratic Forces (SDF), an alliance of Kurdish and Arab armed groups, said the campaign, called Euphrates Anger, had begun on Saturday evening. An SDF spokesman had earlier been quoted on Sunday saying it would start within hours. "The general command of the Syria Democratic Forces announces the blessed start of its major military campaign to liberate the city of Raqqa," Jehan Sheikh Amad, an SDF spokeswoman, told a news conference. SAMSUNG TO LAUNCH AI DIGITAL ASSISTANT SERVICE FOR GALAXY S8

Samsung Electronics Co Ltd said on Sunday it would launch an artificial intelligence digital assistant service for its upcoming Galaxy S8 smartphone, seeking to rebound from the Galaxy Note 7's collapse and differentiate its devices. The world's top smartphone maker in October announced the acquisition of Viv Labs Inc, a firm run by a co-creator of Apple Inc's Siri voice assistant program. Samsung plans to integrate the San Jose-based company's AI platform, called Viv, into the Galaxy smartphones and expand voice-assistant services to home appliances and wearable technology devices. Samsung is counting on the Galaxy S8 to help revive smartphone momentum after scrapping the fire-prone Galaxy Note 7, which will hit its profit by $5.4 billion over three quarters through the first quarter of 2017. Ghirmay Ghebreslassie, 20, takes first-place in men's race

Kenyan Mary Keitany and Eritrean world champion Ghirmay Ghebreslassie powered to dominant victories Sunday in the New York City Marathon.

Keitany broke from the women's pack early in the race and finished in 2 hours, 24 minutes and 26 seconds. No other woman competitor was in sight as she crossed the finish line.

The 34-year-old runner is the first woman to win three marathons in a row since Grete Waitz was five from 1982 to 1986, according to The New York Times.

Compatriot Sally Kipyego took second in 2:28.01 and U.S. Olympian Molly Huddle made her marathon debut in an impressive 2:28:13 for third.

The 20-year-old Ghebreslassie won the men's race in an unofficial two hours, seven minutes and 51 seconds, more than a minute ahead of Kenyan Lucas Rotich.

Third went to 39-year-old American Abdi Abdirahman (2:11:23).

State lawmaker accused of child abuse

A New York State Assemblywoman was arrested Saturday for alleged child abuse reported by her 13-year-old son, according to news reports.

Diana Richardson's son walked into the 71st Precinct in Brooklyn on Friday and told police that his mother beat him with a broomstick because of his bad grades.

The distraught boy showed officers a contusion on his left arm that he said his mother inflicted during a fight about his report card, police said. He was taken to Kings County Hospital, police said.

Richardson, 33, was arrested in her Crown Heights home at 1 a.m. Police said she admitted to beating the boy after he refused to write an essay about how to improve his grades and pushed her.

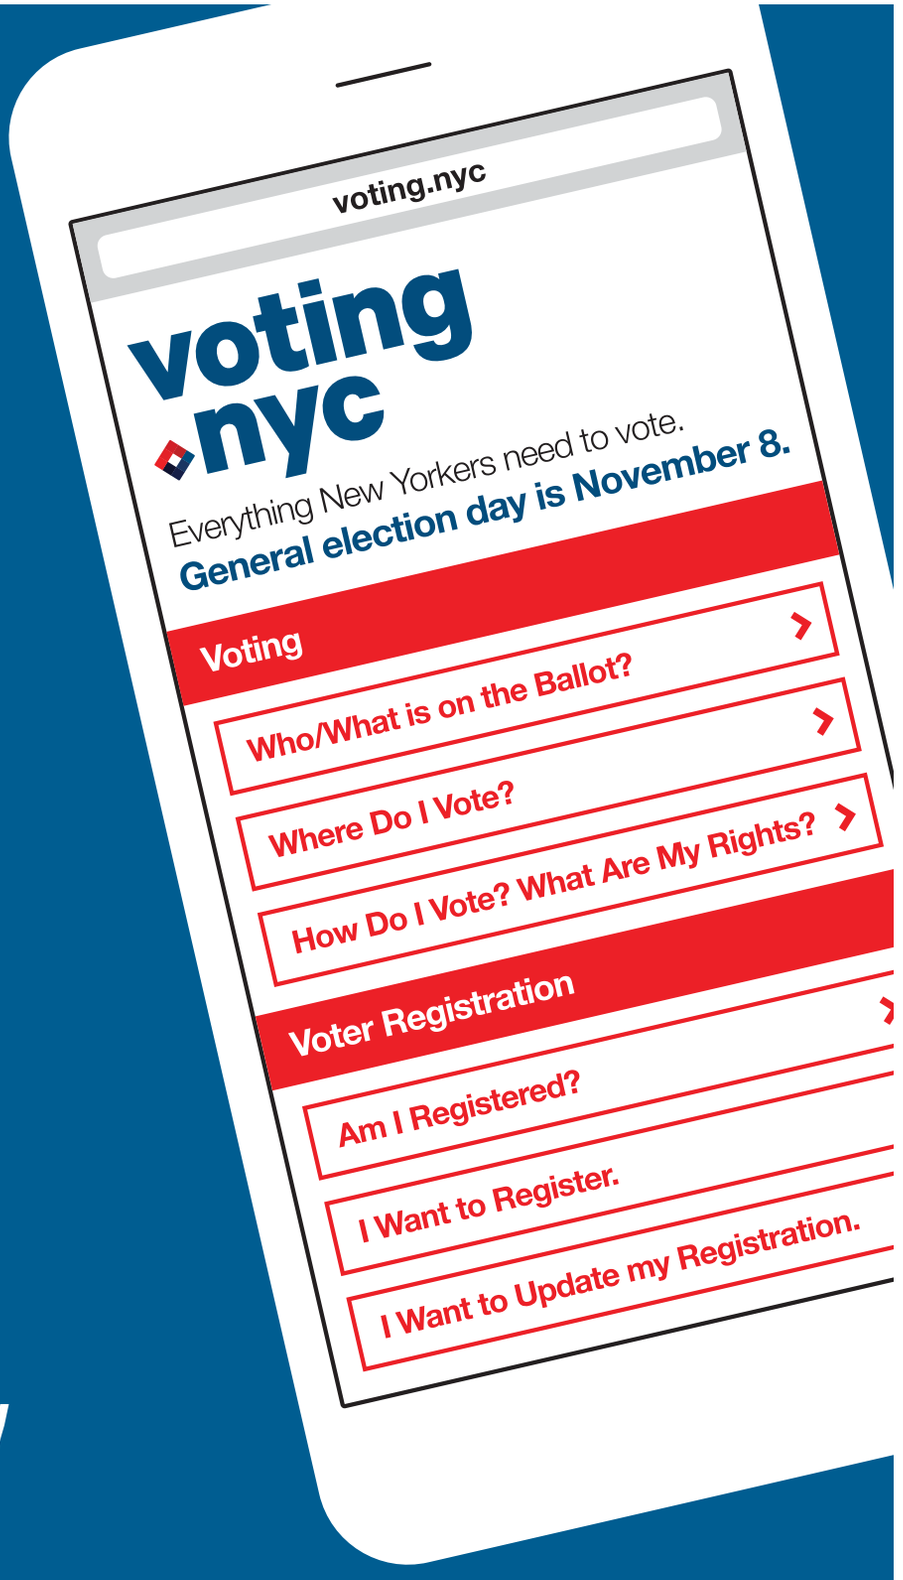

Richardson is completing her first term in Brooklyn's 43rd District which includes Crown Heights, Wingate, East Flatbush and Prospect-Lefferts Gardens.

On social media, she has called her son her "greatest achievement." She commented in January 2015, "He is a pain in my side but I love him anyway!"

She was charged with assault, endangering the welfare of a child, criminal possession of a weapon and menacing. She was released without bail and is due back in court on Jan. 10.

There was no information available as to whether she has obtained a lawyer who could comment on the charges in her behalf.

Sexting, cybersex addiction a growing problem, therapists say

Anthony Weiner entered a rehab center after investigators started to look into his contact with a teen in North Carolina.

ALAN KRAWITZ
@MetroNewYork
letters@metro.us

Recent news that Anthony Weiner had entered an in-patient cybersex rehab facility in Tennessee has generated some interest in what type of treatment he'll receive and whether it can help the disgraced political figure.

Addiction experts say that Weiner's rehab will likely use some of the same treatments that are used for people addicted to drugs and alcohol.

"He [Weiner] might get various types of treatments including Cognitive-Behavioral Therapy, which is a type of treatment that helps patients understand the thoughts and feelings that influence behaviors," said Puja Hall, a licensed psychotherapist who specializes in the treatment of sex addiction and is also the founder of the New York Center for Sexuality and Sex Addiction Treatment.

CBT is commonly used to treat a wide range of disorders including phobias, addictions, depression, and anxiety.

"You also need to address the underlying issues, such as the need for adoration from people and validation… these are all connected to strong compulsive and in this case self-destructive behaviors that led to his sexting," she said.

The report about Weiner entering cybersex rehab follows a string of sexting scandals that forced the former congressman from office, derailed his bid for mayor in 2013 and threatened to impact Democratic candidate Hillary Clinton's chances in the presidential election.

Weiner's sexting recently attracted national attention when investigators looking into his alleged contact with a 15-year-old North Carolina girl found emails on his computer from Hillary Clinton's private server.

Anthony Weiner GETTY IMAGES

Soon after that revelation, he separated from his wife, Clinton aide Huma Adedin.

Hall said Weiner's treatment might include group and individual therapies, such as Sex Addicts Anonymous, similar to 12-step programs for alcohol abuse where "sponsors," or designated people, are used as support mechanisms.

Such rebab centers typically ban electronic devices and patients are separated by gender.

Cybersex addiction isn't uncommon, Hall said.

"Anybody can be vulnerable, it's so prevalent nowadays, especially with all that's out there including online porn and dating sites," she said.

Dr. Jennifer Schneider, a specialist in addictive sexual disorders, seemed to agree, writing that "cybersex is particularly dangerous because it can rapidly lure in someone who has never had any kind of internet addiction before."

She notes that "The financial cost is low, the rewards seem immediate and it's available around-the-clock – causing cybersex to be compared to some types of addictive street drugs."

Hall was careful, though, about speculating about Weiner's specific condition, saying although Weiner certainly appears to needs a lot of attention; a thorough interview would be required to fully assess his condition.

"He repeatedly put himself in risky, dangerous situations that were very damaging … it is heart-breaking in a way," she said, adding that there was "certainly some level of compulsivity he didn't have control over."

Hall is optimistic about Weiner's chances for recovery.

"If he is motivated, then he has a good chance for recovery," she said.

"People can recover, they do it every day, but they have to be motivated themselves."

Cop wounded in Bronx shootout recovering as city mourns another fallen officer

An NYPD sergeant is recovering after being shot in a Bronx gun battle, which claimed the life of another sergeant, police said.

Sgt. Emmanuel Kwo was hit in the leg, and Sgt. Paul Tuozzolo was fatally shot in the forehead Friday afternoon during a shootout with Manuel Rosales, 35, on Beach Avenue in Van Nest.

Kwo, 30, was released from Jacobi Medical Center late Friday, police said.

The city is morning Tuozzolo, 41, a 19-year veteran of the NYPD. He lived in Suffolk county with his wife and two children.

"We lost a very good man, a devoted man," Mayor Bill de Blasio said of Tuozzolo at the news conference. "A man who committed his life to protecting all of us."

Paul Tuozzolo was killed in the line of duty on Nov. 4, 2016. GO FUND ME

At a vigil for Tuozzolo held in Huntington Saturday, a blue line was painted in the street in front of his home in his memory. Flowers, candles and ribbons were displayed in his community and at the 43rd Precinct.

Members of the Sergeants Benevolent Association created a GoFundMe campaign to raise money for the NYPD Widows and Children's Fund. As of press time, the campaign had raised $45,300 of their $100,000 goal. The money is to be given as a scholarship for the slain officer's two children.

Surveillance video captured the moments when the officers approached Rosales, who then opened fire with a Colt .45 handgun, hitting Tuozzolo in the head.

Rosales was carrying multiple weapons when he broke into his estranged wife's home around 3 p.m., police said. The 29-year-old woman was home with their 3-year-old son, along with a 50-year-old woman and a 13-year-old child, Police Commissioner James O'Neill said.

Kwo sustained a gunshot wound in the leg but managed to take cover behind a car while also shooting at Rosales.

Other officers who arrived at the scene continued to shoot and kill Rosales.

Rosales had 17 other arrests on his record, police said.

The two officers were taken to Jacobi Medical Center, where Tuozzolo was pronounced dead.

Man critical after fall while retrieving drone

A 55-year-old man plummeted from the roof of a Manhattan apartment building while trying to retrieve his drone, police said Sunday.

The man, whose identity wasn't disclosed by investigators, fell three stories from the rooftop on the building on East 12th Street in the East Village, according to the New York Post.

He had been flying his drone from the roof when it crashed on the roof of an adjacent building. He was attempting to climb down from one rooftop to the other when he slipped onto the roof of the building below, police said.

He was taken to Bellevue hospital in critical condition, police said. GARY KANE

POST-ELECTION EXTRA-SUPERMOON COMING

GETTY IMAGES

Bolaris' Weather Watch

JOHN BOLARIS
@weathersavior

Sometimes as a meteorologist, when the weather looks quite tranquil from coast to coast, you look for a little nugget, something to ponder.

Not only can we look forward to a supermoon, which is a full moon with the closest approach the moon makes to the earth, but it will be an extra-supermoon as its perceived size and brightness will be the largest in almost a century.

The last time we had an extra-supermoon was in January of 1948, also an election year. On Nov. 2 of that year, President Harry S. Truman, the Democratic incumbent, defeated Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican nominee.

The 1948 election is considered to be the greatest election upset in American history. Virtually every prediction had Dewey easily defeating Truman.

The extra-supermoon will occur on Monday, Nov. 14. Its size will appear to be 14 percent larger and its brightness will increase by 30 percent. If the skies are clear, it will be a brilliant display. If skies are cloudy, you'll need to wait until September of 2034 for the next one.

Now if you would like to take this into the astrological realm, astrologist Serge Bernard, who has been an astrologer since 1975, gives his bottom line on what it might or might not mean for the upcoming election.

"I am anticipating that unexpected events are likely to happen between now, the inauguration and even after," he predicts. "New key revelations have a high probability to be brought to light. All along this U.S. election has been unconventional and so its outcome is expected too. We are living in confusing times, more critical truths are likely to come out and more surprising events are to be anticipated. I am leaving to your imagination what those future events might be."

Oh, by the way, the weather will be gorgeous for this Election Day. Sunny skies with temperatures in the 60s will make it a no-excuse Tuesday to get out and vote.

Three killed, three wounded in stabbings at New Jersey home

Three people were stabbed to death, two of them children, and three others wounded at a house in Newark, New Jersey, on Saturday and authorities asked for the public's help in finding a man acquainted with at least one of the victims.

Officers summoned to the house at about 3:30 p.m. found all six stabbing victims on the second floor, one of them already dead, said Anthony Ambrose, Newark's director of public safety, during a news conference.

Two of the victims later died of their wounds while the remaining three were hospitalized, authorities said.

The deceased were identified only as an 8-year-old girl, an 11-year-old boy and a 23-year-old woman.

The wounded victims were described as a 29-year-old woman and two 13-year-old children, a boy and a girl.

The woman, the mother of at least one of the younger victims, was listed in stable condition, while there was no information immediately available on the status of the children.

Authorities said they were seeking 26-year-old Jeremy Arrington for questioning. Police and prosecutors said Arrington, a Newark resident, was not a suspect in the stabbings but was considered a "person of interest." REUTERS

Election Day in New York: What you need to know

We won't tell you who to vote for, but we will tell you what you need to know about casting your ballot.

NIKKI M. MASCALI
@MetroNewYork
nikki.mascali@metro.us

Everything we've seen and heard and read the past 18 months all comes down to Tuesday's vote.

After contentious campaigns by both Hillary Clinton and Donald Trump, the time has come for citizens to decide who will be the next U.S. president.

Here's what you need to know about Election Day:

When can I vote?
Polls will be open from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. Tuesday.

I'm not registered. Can I still vote?
No. The registration deadline was Oct. 14.

I think I registered in time. How do I find out if I'm good to go?
You can visit elections.ny.gov and click the "Want to find out if you are registered and where you vote?" tab.

I have no idea where I'm supposed to vote. Help!
See above, or visit vote.nyc.ny.us.

What do I need to bring to the polling station?
If you've voted in New York before, you don't need your ID to vote in person. But we do recommend you bring your driver's license or state ID card and know your Social Security number just in case.

This is my first time voting. What can I expect?
Once you get to your designated polling station, your address will be looked up to make sure you're in the right place. After signing your name on the list of registered voters, you'll get a voter card, ballot and privacy sleeve and be directed to an area where you can privately cast your vote.

Aside from the presidential candidates, who else can I vote for?
You can input your address on ballotpedia.org to look up a sample ballot for your area.

I don't think I want to be alone as the results come in. Where should I watch televised coverage of the results?
Luckily, we've got a handy guide to the best election night viewing parties at the ready for you.

Jump in Florida, Nevada early voting could reap Latino gains for Clinton

Clinton has polled much stronger among Latino voters nationwide, suggesting she would benefit more from a surge in early voting in those two states, voting experts say.

The man answering a volunteer's knock on the door in the Kendall section of Miami-Dade County on Saturday was emphatic: Not only would he vote but "esperamos que la presidenta gane" — Spanish for "we hope Madam President wins."

Volunteers across Florida made a last-minute push to get voters to the polls this weekend with early voting ending on Sunday ahead of Election Day on Tuesday, pitting Republican Donald Trump against Democrat Hillary Clinton, or "la presidenta," as the man at the door called her.

Latino voters like the man in Kendall and elsewhere could have an outsized influence in Tuesday's election. Early voting data may portend a jump in the number of Hispanic voters this year, especially in the key swing states of Florida and Nevada.

A recent poll conducted by the firms The Tarrance Group and Bendixen and Amandi found that Hispanic registered voters in Florida favor Clinton 60 percent to 30 percent. In Nevada the gap was even wider — 72 percent for Clinton and 19 percent for Trump.

In Florida, the Clinton campaign estimates early Latino voting is up 139 percent, or more than twice as much, compared to 2012, according to a Wednesday field report.

Democratic strategist Steve Schale, a Florida expert, estimated that 170,000 more Hispanics had voted early or by mail as of Wednesday than had voted early or by mail in the entire 2012 election, according to a post on his blog.

"And keep in mind, because Hispanic is a self-identifying marker, studies have found that the real Hispanic vote is larger than the registration. So while Hispanics might make up 14.2 percent of the voters who have voted so far, in reality, the number is larger," he wrote.

But the raw data leave a number of questions. Will Latinos keep up the higher turnout rates on Election Day? For which candidate did they vote? Will turnout from Latinos and other minorities make enough of a difference to swing Florida and other states?

Trump kicked off his maverick campaign last year by calling many Mexican immigrants rapists and criminals, and his relationship with Latinos hardly improved from there. From his calls to build a wall on the border and have Mexico pay for it, to comments that an American-born judge could not do his job because of his Mexican heritage, Trump has consistently had low polling figures with Latinos across the country.

The state of Nevada does not note race or ethnicity on its voter registration but other data there suggest Latinos also are turning out in force.

For one thing, Clark County has seen a surge in early voting. Between in-person and absentee voting, registered Democrats have now returned over 72,000 more ballots than registered Republicans there. Those figures do not indicate which candidate voters picked, only the party with which the voters are registered.

Friday alone saw 57,172 votes in person in Clark County. Photos making the rounds on social media showed especially long lines at a Cardenas market voting site, which stayed open late to accommodate the surge of voters.

REUTERS

"And keep in mind, because Hispanic is a self-identifying marker, studies have found that the real Hispanic vote is larger than the registration. So while Hispanics might make up 14.2 percent of the voters who have voted so far, in reality, the number is larger."

FBI director clears Clinton again of wrongdoing in email investigation

James Comey backpedals from implicating Clinton for criminal conduct.

AMANDA MIKELBERG

amanda.mikelberg@metro.us

In another surprise move, FBI Director James Comey wrote a new letter to Congress on Sunday stating that he and the agency have not changed their position that Hillary Clinton should not face criminal charges related to her use of private email.

The letter delivered Sunday to Republicans on the House Oversight Committee stated that the FBI "has not changed its conclusions expressed in July with respect to Secretary Clinton."

"I write to supplement my October 28, 2016 letter that notified you the FBI would be taking additional investigative steps with respect to former Secretary of State Clinton's use of a personal email server," Comey wrote. "Since my letter, the FBI investigative team has been working around the clock to process and review a large volume of emails from a device obtained in connection with an unrelated criminal investigation."

In July, Comey concluded that "we cannot find a case that would support bringing criminal charges on these facts."

The majority of the emails found on a decade-old computer seized in a sexting investigation of Anthony Weiner, the estranged husband of Clinton's aide Huma Abedin, were mostly duplicates of the emails reviewed previously, CNN reported.

At a rally in North Carolina, Donald Trump continued to claim that his opponent is guilty of treason. "Mishandling classified information is a crime," he said.

"Hillary Clinton will be under investigation for a long, long time for her many crimes against our nation, our people, our democracy, likely concluding in a criminal trial," Trump said in North Carolina. Supporters chanted, "Lock her up! Lock her up!"

Comey faced an onslaught of criticism for apparently insinuating 11 days before Election Day that the Democratic nominee engaged in criminal misconduct with regards to classified information. "The FBI has learned of the existence of emails that appear to be pertinent to the investigation," and the agency will work to "determine whether they contain classified information."

Both Democrats and Republicans demanded more information from the FBI director.

"By providing selective information, he's allowed partisans to distort and exaggerate in order to inflict maximum political damage and no one can separate what is true from what is not because Comey has not been forthcoming with the facts," Clinton campaign chairman John Podesta said.

"We're glad this issue is resolved, but for the record, this could easily have been learned before 1st letter was sent."

Clinton spokesman Brian Fallon wrote on Twitter

US appeals court removes new voter-intimidation rules in Ohio

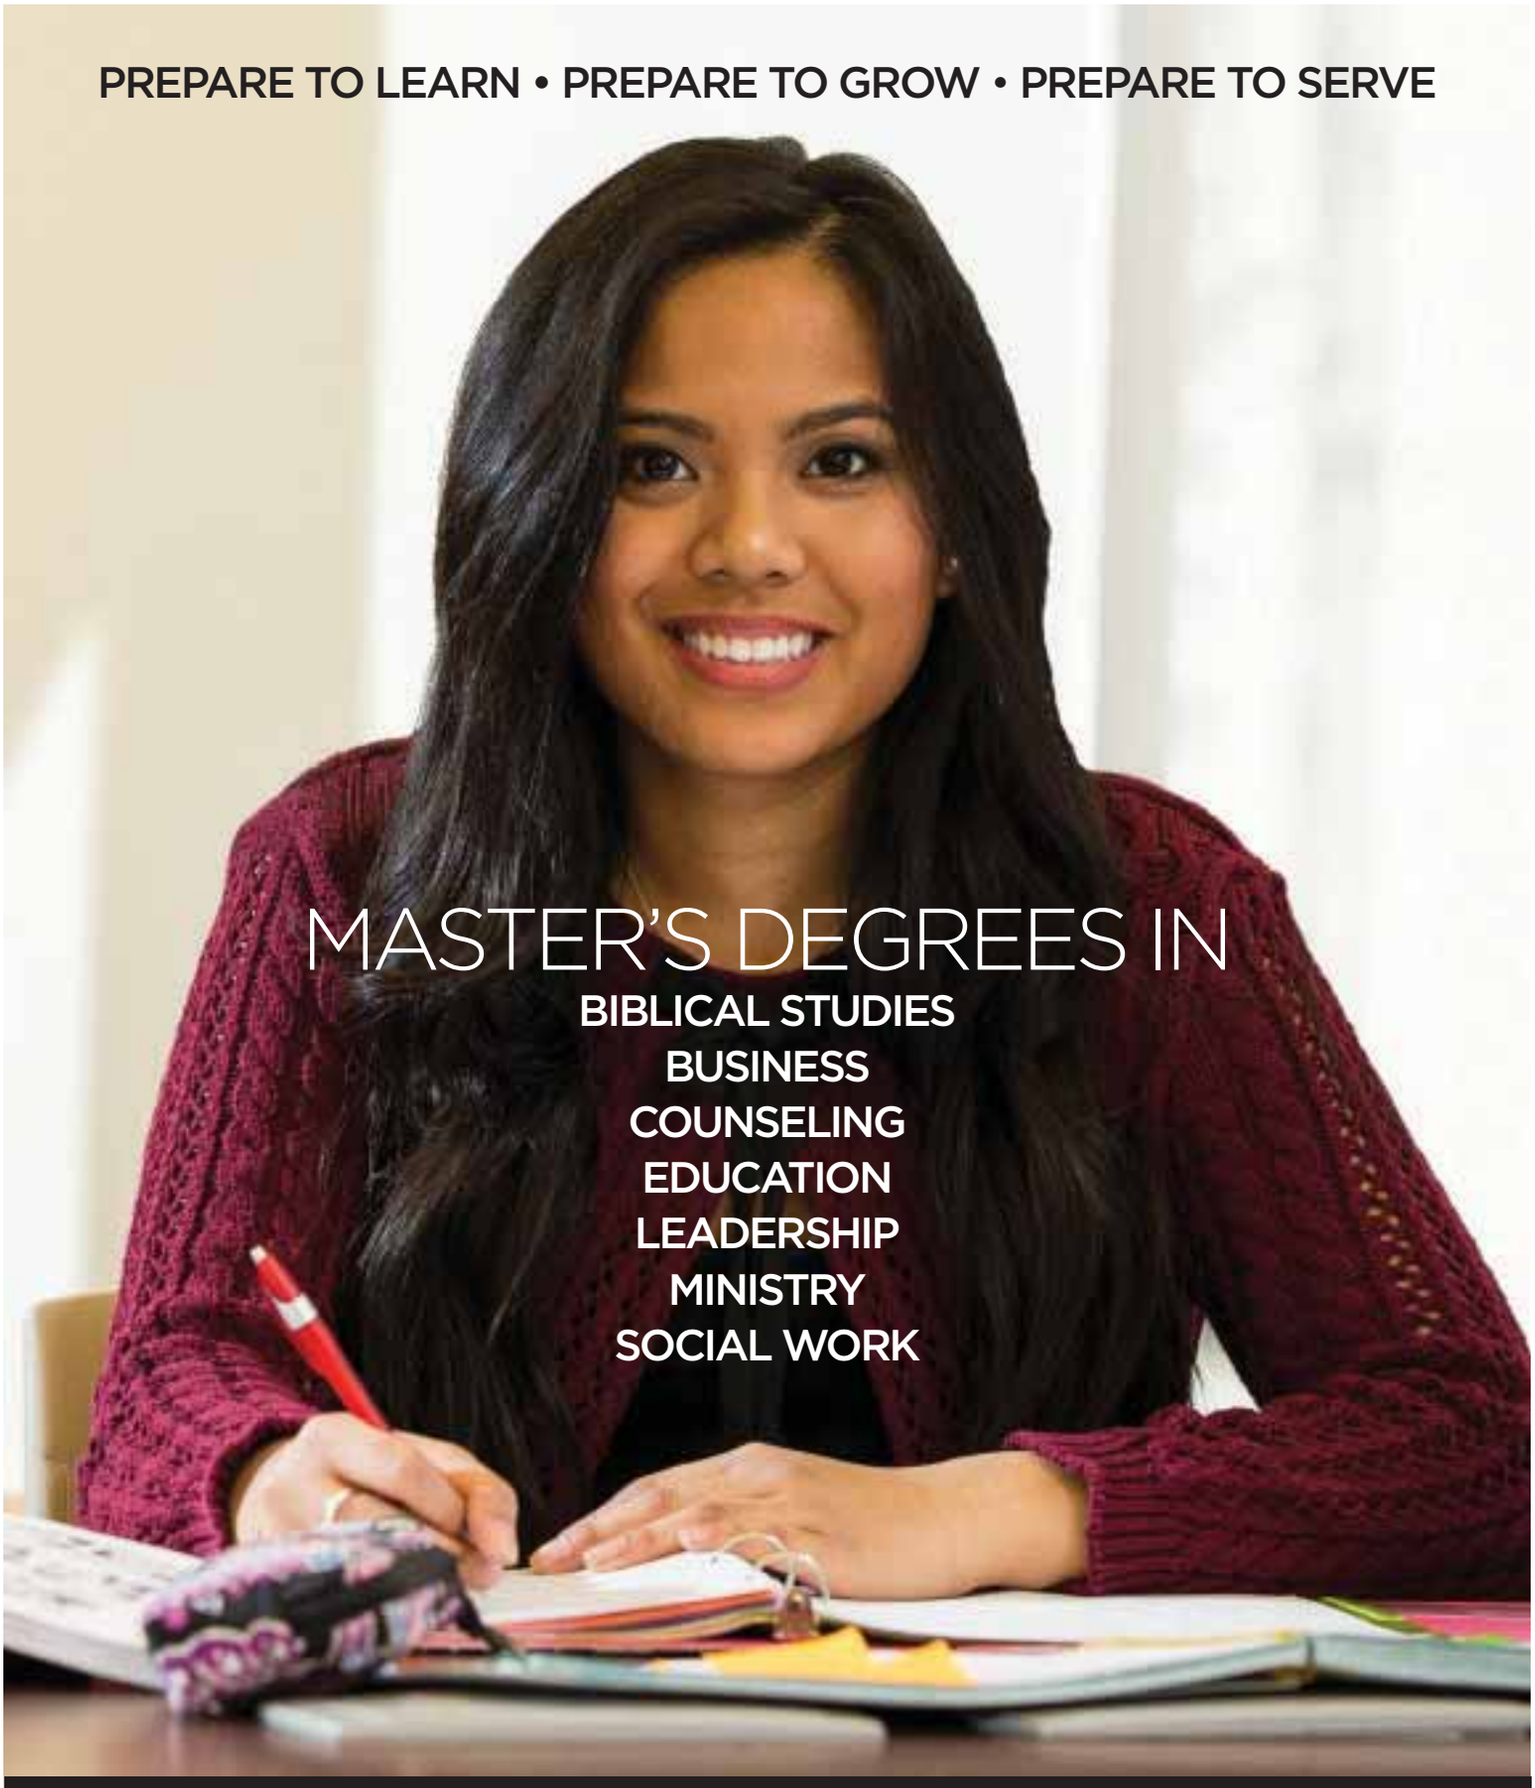

Republican presidential candidate Donald Trump won a legal battle on Sunday when a U.S. appeals court in Ohio removed new restrictions on partisan poll watchers that Democrats had sought to prevent Election Day voter intimidation.

The rules overturned by the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals would have imposed greater penalties on people who harass voters during Tuesday's election.

Voter intimidation already is prohibited under U.S. law but Democrats have pushed for greater restrictions in Ohio and five other battleground states, citing concerns that Trump's heated rhetoric might inspire Election Day chaos.

On the campaign trail, Trump has warned the election may be rigged and has called on supporters to keep an eye on voting activity for possible signs of fraud in large cities. Numerous studies have found that U.S. voter fraud is exceedingly rare.

Final reckoning approaches for Obama's Supreme Court nominee

Several intriguing scenarios could unfold after Tuesday's election to break the deadlock over filling a Supreme Court vacancy that has provoked a bitter nine-month standoff between President Barack Obama and Senate Republicans.

Obama nominated U.S. Appeals Court Judge Merrick Garland on March 16 to replace long-serving conservative Justice Antonin Scalia, who died on Feb. 13. The Republican-led Senate, in a move with little precedent, has refused to consider the nomination, saying the winner of the presidential election should make the pick.

If Republican Donald Trump wins, Garland's nomination would be dead. Trump has already put forth a list of conservative jurists as potential nominees.

If Obama's fellow Democrat Hillary Clinton wins, there are ways Garland could secure Senate confirmation to the lifetime post before Obama leaves office on Jan. 20.

Senate Republican Leader Mitch McConnell has been adamant that Obama's successor should select Scalia's replacement and that he will not consider Garland's nomination during a postelection "lame duck" session.

Merrick Garland GETTY IMAGES

But McConnell could come under pressure by some Senate Republicans to allow confirmation hearings and a vote on Garland, who has a reputation in Washington as a moderate, out of fear Clinton could instead choose a more liberal nominee.

The Senate's inaction on Garland has made the Supreme Court a potent issue in the election. After many years of leaning conservative, a new Democratic appointment could tilt the court to the left for the first time in decades. Scalia's death left the court split with four liberals and four conservatives.

"Garland is a liberal, not a centrist."
Severino

Conservative activists dismiss the notion Garland is a moderate, saying he would vote with the four liberal justices on major, ideologically divisive issues.

"Garland is a liberal, not a centrist," said Carrie Severino, a lawyer with the Judicial Crisis Network.

Liberal activists like Caroline Fredrickson, president of the American Constitution Society, said Republicans should move forward on Garland.

"He's got every qualification you could ask for. He's exactly the type of judge they claimed they wanted," Fredrickson said.

If Democrats win control of the Senate in Tuesday's election, the new congressional session would begin on Jan. 3, and they could decide to move forward immediately on Garland's nomination before Obama's term ends. REUTERS

Social media helps US millennial voters register, turnout worries linger

Political experts are skeptical that a record number of millennials who signed up to vote will actually result in the 18- to 34-year-old age group turning out at the polls in proportion to their relative size of the population.

As the youngest members of the millennial generation became old enough to vote in this year's presidential election, states and social media platforms poured efforts into online registration, hoping to attract these tech savvy voters who now rival baby boomers as the country's largest demographic.

Millennials make up approximately 31 percent of U.S. citizens eligible to vote, according to the Pew Research Center, on par for the first time with baby boomers, who are typically aged 52-70 years old. There are an estimated 225.8 million eligible U.S. voters.

Millennials have so far, however, turned out in much lower numbers in elections than baby boomers. In 2008, a record year for millennial turnout, just 50 percent of those eligible to vote did so, the National Census Bureau said. That compared with turnout rates of 69 percent for baby boomers and 61 percent for people aged 36 to 51, also known as Generation X.

This year, a number of efforts on social media by states and nonprofits aimed to change that, including Facebook reminders on users' accounts, Twitter hashtag campaigns, celebrities creating Snapchat and an Instagram post urging people to vote.

Millennials listen as Hillary Clinton and Bernie Sanders campaign together at the University of New Hampshire in Durham, New Hampshire, on Sept. 28. GETTY IMAGES

According to a survey of state electoral officials and voter nonprofits around the United States, these social media campaigns have paid off, at least when it came to getting young voters registered.

A survey of 2,000 millennials conducted by social media platform Yik Yak, which is known for its popularity among college students and teens, showed that 62 percent registered to vote for the first time this year and, of those, 9 percent registered online following a social media prompt.

In California, roughly 31 percent of all registered voters are now aged 18-35. A Facebook reminder on May 16 coincided with 143,255 people registering or updating their registrations online that day in the state, compared to an average of 23,166 per day that month, said California secretary of state spokesman Sam Mahood. Other states reported similar spikes.

"Let's face it — that's where [younger voters] are; they're on social media."

Merrill

In Oregon, more than 420,000 people registered to vote online in 2016, up from 2012 when 163,545 used the online system. Digital voter enrollments in Washington jumped by roughly 135,000 in 2016, compared to 2012. From January through mid-October this year, 381,318 people used the online system in Indiana, nearly three times as many as in 2012.

"Let's face it — that's where [younger voters] are; they're on social media," said Denise Merrill, the secretary of state for Connecticut, which used social media campaigns, including a dedicated hashtag and Facebook's banner ads, to drive registrations. "Whatever we're doing, we're having pretty dramatic results."

Like a lot of experts, Donald Green, a professor of political science at Columbia University, is skeptical that an increase in young voter registration will correspond with millennials unseating the baby boomers as the most active voting bloc.

Green conceded that there was "change afoot," but said he thought it would far more gradual. By his estimate, it would be 25 years before millennials overtake baby boomers, or what he dubbed "generational replacement."

"In presidential elections the translation of new registration to votes is more like one half or one third," he said.

Michael Cornfield, an associate professor of political management at George Washington University, agreed that registering someone to vote does not guarantee they'll show up on Election Day. REUTERS

THOUSANDS of knee arthritis sufferers flock for this advanced medica

Knee Arthritis Pain

Why patients come from Brooklyn, Queens, Long Island, the Bronx for this arthritis pain treatment . . . and why waiting c

By Matt Edgar - America's Health Writer

NY Pain MD, a center for Non-Surgical Medical Relief For Spine And Joint Pain Relief, is a medical clinic with multiple locations in New York City that has treated thousands of knee arthritis patients. Here is what every knee arthritis sufferer should know about the best treatments and options available today. And why waiting can drastically decrease your chances to live a pain free life again.

The information you are about to read can possibly save you from years and years of agonizing knee pain. It might even keep you from getting total knee replacement surgery. Please pay careful attention.

What you are about to read is a cutting-edge medical treatment... But it is NOT what it appears to be at first glance. In fact, I'm going to have to ask for a bit of patience from you if you have already unsuccessfully tried any (or many) other knee arthritis pain treatments

You see, many knee arthritis sufferers had already tried what seemed to be similar treatments to what we are going to talk about and did not get the results they wanted. But I assure you there is something VERY DIFFERENT about the technology and the way we do this treatment that can possibly make it much more effective for many ... and it often gets results when many others have failed.

This is why patients come from all over the tri-state area and beyond to have their knee arthritis pain treated here.

Would You Like Instant Proof?

If you want instant proof - you can just look at all the actual patient testimonials we have included. These patients were once skeptical just like you ... and are now either pain free ... or eliminated quite a bit of their pain..

Here's the most important thing:

Many said they had seen this information SEVERAL times before finally deciding to take action and give us a call. As you can see - they are happy they did. Once crippled with knee pain, they are playing golf again, dancing again, riding bikes again and going for long walks again.

But We Do Get One Very Common Complaint ... And it is:

"I wish I started this treatment much sooner."

Let's be very clear about this. Time is the most precious thing. There is no way to slow it down - or get any of it back once it's gone.

All the more reason for you to not suffer even one more second than necessary. Missing life while suffering in pain is a tragedy. Isn't it time for you try to get rid of your knee pain and start living the life you want and deserve?

And please understand this: One of the keys to success in medicine is early diagnosis and treatment. Like many diseases, arthritis only gets worse over time. The longer you wait - the more damage to your knee and eventually- the more pain. If you wait "past the point of no return", the entire knee joint can be degenerated and your ONLY option will be total knee replacement.

If you are suffering with knee arthritis pain, here is why you should act NOW:
When you have arthritis, you suffer a decrease in the lubricating fluids in your knee. In other words, your knee joint basically "dries up." The lubricating fluid that decreases is called "synovial fluid". Pharmaceutical companies can now make synovial fluid-like compounds that… during treatment… doctors precisely and directly apply these gel-like medicines into the knee joint. This helps replenish the lubricating fluid to the knee joint - cushioning the knee allowing it to move more freely and smoothly while often decreasing or even eliminating pain.

What Results Can Be Expected?

Like all medical treatments, the results vary and can not be predicted. In fact, it is impossible to predict results and there are no statistics proving what the "average" patients can expect. Everyone is individual and gets individual results - so we never tell anyone to expect the same results as any of our other patients. But to be 100% clear - many knee arthritis sufferers get dramatic results. It is not uncommon for patients to either postpone knee replacement surgery for years ... or even permanently cancel it.

What Are Treatments Like?

Treatments are simple, fast and virtually painless. The total time of the procedure itself is only 10 minutes and you walk out of the clinic just minutes after your procedure with nothing but a one inch band-aid on your knee.

But There Is A BIG Problem. The key is that the treatment must be EXTREMELY PRECISE. Often ignored by many other clinics, if the procedure is just slightly off, the medication will not get exactly into the knee joint and the treatment will not work. That's why the experts at NY Pain MD use what they call "Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology" or P.A.T.T. - so they can confirm the special medicine went directly into the knee joint and not into the surrounding tissues.

Research shows that doctors performing procedures without Precision Arthritis Targeting can miss the joint as much as 30% of the time. If you had viscosupplementation (or Stem Cells or PRP) without the exactness of P.A.T.T. and did not get good results - this may be why.

In fact, by using Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology, NY Pain MD doctors are able to "double confirm" the precise placement of the natural arthritis medicines used. This is to help ensure patients get the best possible results.

Another Important Factor

Viscosupplementation medications also come in several different brands and chemical make- ups. Just like all medications, some people respond better to some than others. While many doctors only use one type or formula, the experts at NY Pain MD use several. And great effort is taken to figure out which is best for YOU.

What To Do Next If You Are In Pain

Your Special Invitation

NY Pain MD offers a limited number of complimentary knee arthritis treatment screenings every month. These screenings are a way for knee arthritis sufferers to get their questions answered and find out if they are a candidate for one of the cutting-edge treatments offered at NY Pain MD. To schedule a complimentary screening, all you have to do is call 800-227-KNEE. The screenings can fill up fast every month. But, this screening is at no cost and there is no further obligation. Call 800-227-KNEE to schedule your screening. Many of the procedures offered at NY Pain MD are often covered by many insurance plans, union plans, work comp and even traditional & AARP Medicare.

, Staten Island, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Connecticut and beyond can decrease your chance to live a pain-free life again

"I cannot ask for better results"

Dr. Stanley Weiner, M.D. - Surgeon

I had (replacement) surgery scheduled last year. But three months before the surgery I decided to make an appointment with NY Pain MD I was amazed at the ease with which I was evaluated and the treatment schedule implemented. The results I had at NY Pain MD were outstanding. I cannot ask for better results. After the treatment I was able to go back to work with no discomfort at all. They use a digital monitor to locate the space that they use the treatment for and it's like exact science and I never had to have replacement.

Dr. Stanley Weiner MD

"Hey this feel terrific"

I was diagnosed with bone on bone about 2 years ago I went to see an Orthopedic Surgeon and he said my knees were shot and I need to get them replaced. The NY Pain guys said after looking at x-rays they could help. That procedure is so basic so simple so quick in 15 minutes you are in and out. When I got up out of the chair I stood up and I said, "Hey this feels terrific."

"I don't have any pain any more"

After I had the treatments ... the last tune up ... I just go right to the golf course. I'm able to keep up with these guys who walk - I'm right next to them! My guys on the golf course would say Hey, look at this he doesn't need us to put the ball up any more. When I'm playing on the course I don't have any pain any more I don't have any aches and pain. I'm out there playing!

"I feel like a new woman"

I came to the clinic because I was not sleeping at night. My leg was pounding. There were times when I sat too long the knee would tighten up. I would get in pain and I would be miserable and I would have it for the whole night. After the treatment I goof around with my grandchildren. I feel like a new woman. It's great. I know I don't have to sit on the couch and be in pain and I can just pick up and get dressed and go out. It was so gentle.

"I'm able to do it again"

It got to the point where I couldn't stand up for a period of time and I knew something had to be done about it. You walk into the doctors office - he puts your leg in a machine - he shows you where he is going to do the procedure and before you know it... It's done and you're outta there. Now I'm able to take out my bicycle and we took a couple of rides out in the woods and we had a good time and . . . I couldn't do that for years and now I'm able to do it again.

"I feel like a new woman - It's amazing"

The pain was excruciating like 24/7. Nothing I took over-the-counter would work so I knew it was something more serious. When I saw that my condition was not getting any better, I decided to do something about it and I immediately made an appointment - I went and started treatment. The feeling of getting back to my dancing and my mobility is indescribable. I feel like a new woman - It's amazing.

"I am ecstatic with the results of this procedure"

One day, as I was running, my knee got tighter and tighter. I had to stop and just walk home. They x-rayed me and said I was a candidate for treatment. You sit there for few minutes and then you are up and walking out the door. I am ecstatic with the results of this procedure because I could not run just weeks before. I ran my race without any issues. I felt good - it just opened a door that was closing.

"I Can Finally Live My Life"

Prior the relief center I was taking painkillers and I was becoming addicted to it and it was damaging my health. Since the treatment, I've been able to be less dependent on them. I don't feel helpless anymore. Since going through the procedure I can finally live. I can finally live my life.

Would you pay $500K for Justin Bieber's New Year's Eve VIP experience?

Partygoers are used to shelling out a little extra cash to have a great time on New Year's Eve. Bars and clubs jack up their cover charges; many sell out in advance.

You need a new outfit and champagne is mandatory. But a few hundred bucks is still only a penny in the bucket next to the lucky person who snags the Ultimate VIP Package for Justin Bieber's New Year's Eve concert.

The Fontainebleau hotel in Miami is offering an exclusive NYE experience that includes five nights accommodations in their suites for up to 10 guests, free access to luxury cars, a private escort to Skrillex's set, a stage-front table at Justin's concert, plus a two-hour spa treatment and bloody mary bar to soothe the next day's hangover.

The experience will be sold to the first person to shell out $500,000. For this much money, Justin better be jumping in the jacuzzi next to you.

Blac Chyna goes off on Wendy Williams

Talk show host Wendy Williams hit a sore spot with Blac Chyna during a segment on her show Friday. Wendy ranted about Rob Kardashian lacking confidence and being taken advantage of by Chyna and her mother for money and fame.

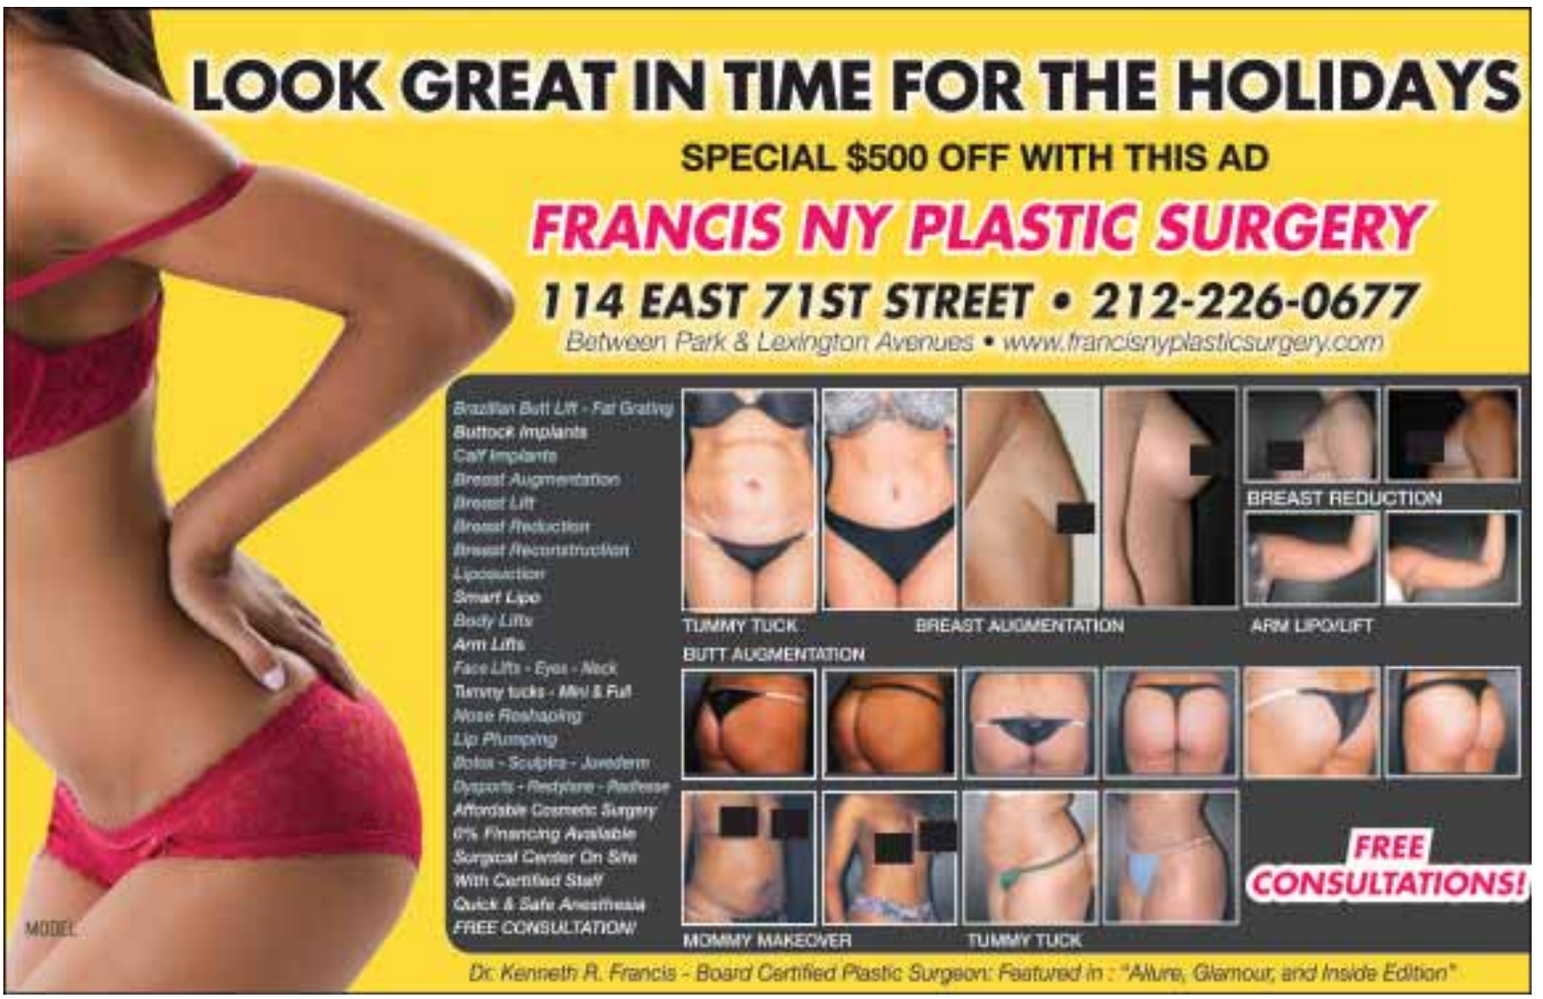

Needless to say, Rob's pregnant fiancee wasn't happy. Blac Chyna posted a less than flattering picture of Wendy on her Instagram and let her have it in the caption. She raged:

"You go out there talking about my family like you just hit the pipe backstage! When I decided to do this show I knew I would be letting the world see us. But your horse face a— woke up on the wrong side of the stable and decide to go overboard with your f— boy comments."

Chyna is set to give birth next week at the luxurious Cedars-Sinai Medical Center in Los Angeles. It'll cost around $4,000 a night according to TMZ. Whatever she's doing with Rob is clearly paying off.

More than a couple of years have passed since Black Rebel Motorcycle Club released their seventh album "Specter at the Feast" back in 2013. Should we be worried about the garage-psych trio's relative silence since touring for that record wrapped in 2014? Clearly not, because the Los Angeles-based band is playing a fall co-headlining tour with Death From Above 1979, and openers Deap Vally.

The tour could be one of the hottest triple shots of the year, but there's even better news for BRMC fans: they're working on their unannounced next album and at some shows have aired new songs.

Drummer Leah Shapiro spoke to us during a noisy soundcheck in a hot, humid Austin.

Is BRMC touring to road test new songs or to blow off the cobwebs?
It's a bit of both, really. We have road tested a couple of the new songs.

But we're also writing on the road. We usually use soundcheck to write and get new ideas going. It's more fun working things out on a big stage where things sound really good. It's better than our small studio. We actually feel more inspired doing it this way. In all we've written five new songs; when we get off tour we'll get back into our studio writing mode to finish the album.

Since touring the last album, you underwent major surgery.
Yeah. Ugh! It was for a neurological disease. Brain surgery, that's no fun. There are many other things I would rather have been doing, but I'm recovered now.

The last album took two years to make. Is there any set timeframe to finish this record?
It's going to take as long as it's going to take. I'd rather take two years or more and end up with something we feel good about than slapping something out. It's hard to put a deadline on making a record. If you do you're setting yourself up for stress. We just try to focus on writing and let other people stress about that.

Ideally the recording process should be enjoyable. Is it?
It does get to the point where you are in the rabbit hole focused on one thing. We can spend a lot of time working out arrangements. We try every option before settling on something. You can get lost in that and be there forever. Sometimes you get so close to something that you lose perspective. You have to pull out at some point. It helps to have someone to yank you out of that.

Chinese food gets some respect

The Museum of Food and Drink looks at America's most ubiquitous ethnic restaurant.

EVA KIS
eva.kis@metro.us

Besides a good burger joint, any American city is likely to have a Chinese restaurant. The 170-year history of how that happened is told in "Chow: Making the Chinese American Restaurant," the second exhibit now open at Brooklyn's Museum of Food and Drink.

"This gets across the sheer ubiquity of Chinese restaurants," says MOFAD executive director Peter Kim, gesturing to the Great Wall of 7,250 takeout boxes that welcomes visitors, each representing seven Chinese restaurants in the U.S. "There are three times more Chinese restaurants in the country than there are McDonald's."

"Chow" features a collection of menus spanning the 1900s. PHOTOS BY EVA KIS

The journey to becoming America's most common ethnic food began under difficult circumstances, and along the way gave rise to a wholly new cuisine. Here's a taste of the exhibit.

Business of necessity

When Chinese immigrants arrived in the 1800s, it was to build the Trans-Continental Railroad and mine for gold in California. When an economic slump in the 1870s brought development in the West to a halt, many turned to self-employment by opening restaurants, and because of the dwindling numbers of Chinese immigrants sought to appeal to American tastes. One of the vast collection of historical menus at the heart of "Chow" is from a Pell Street establishment in 1910 that even claimed to be the "Chinese Delmonico."

New Yorkers made it hot

In the late 1800s NYC's urban foodies ventured into Chinatown and discovered chop suey, which would become the hybrid dish that popularized Chinese American cuisine. Traditionally made with innards and vegetables, the Americanized version swapped in more familiar meats and vegetables like button mushrooms, served with a soy gravy.

A unique cooking method

"There's a whole system that's been developed here in the U.S. of velveting your meats, stir-frying it in a wok, building your sauces in the wok and thickening it with cornstarch that's something unique to Chinese American cuisine," Kim explains. Your ticket includes a tasting at the Chow Culinary Kitchen, where chefs will demonstrate these techniques and riff on classic dishes.

Fortune cookies are a Japanese invention

Because it's not a proper Chinese dinner without it, a fortune cookie machine will bake and fold unlimited hot and fresh treats for visitors (look out for chef collaboration flavors). Only thing is, the fortune cookie is credited to a Japanese chef in California at the beginning of the 1900s, but they came to be associated with Chinese restaurants during World War II when Japanese Americans were sent to internment camps and Chinese entrepreneurs bought their fortune-cookie factories. "This machine, appropriately enough, was invented by a Korean American," notes Kim.

See "Chow" at MOFAD Lab, 62 Bayard St., Brooklyn, Friday-Sunday 12-6 p.m.

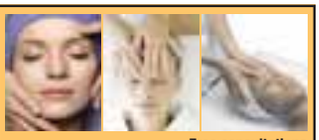

Peter Kim

Guest chefs will hold cooking demos and tastings.

How to break into investigative journalism

New Yorker writer Sarah Stillman shares some tips of the trade.

SARA FEINSTEIN
@MetroNewYork
letters@metro.us

JOHN D. & CATHERINE T. MACARTHUR FOUNDATION.

As a staff writer at The New Yorker, professor of creative nonfiction at Yale and recent recipient of the 2016 MacArthur grant, Sarah Stillman has mastered the art of long-form investigative journalism. She's made a career of immersing herself in the issues and communities the mainstream media often skims over. We sat down with the 32-year-old to discuss the challenges of crafting compelling articles, and entering an industry that requires, more than anything, persistence.

What made you decide to pursue a career in investigative journalism?
Investigative journalism seemed like an opportunity to dive very deeply into particular social problems that I cared a lot about, but didn't see getting a lot of media coverage. Temperamentally, I'm also someone who likes to take my time. I've never been someone who did daily news style journalism and had to parachute in.

How did you get where you are today?
A lot of people tell you to take a job where you're aggregating a lot of news stories and putting tons of content out there. I took the opposite route. I found one particular project that I was deeply obsessed with — an article about workers who were being trafficked to U.S. military bases and subject to labor abuses — and that gave me the chance to really hone and polish a story that my heart was set upon telling. I also received the reporting award from NYU that allowed me to travel and finish reporting the story in Afghanistan. When the article was done, I sent it to The New Yorker and a really remarkable editor was kind enough to give it a read.

Do you have any advice for those looking to pursue this career?
Instead of feeling pulled in a million different directions to publish constant streams of tweets, blog posts and articles,

Help your child achieve academic success

Understanding how your child is doing in school and providing the necessary resources for her to get ahead is important for many parents. We spoke with Megan O'Connor, co-founder and CEO of the tutoring app Clark, for tips on supporting your child's academic success.

Giving your child individualized instruction is key. ISTOCK

Establish a relationship with your child's teacher

Parent-teacher conferences are a great way to find out how your child is doing, but they shouldn't be the only time you're in contact with your child's instructor. O'Connor suggests parents maintain communication throughout the year. "Teachers are the gateway to understanding how your child is doing," she says, "but parents also need to reinforce what's happening in the classroom at home in order for students to achieve ultimate learning outcomes."

Look for outside resources

"In a large classroom, there are 20 to 30 different students who all learn in different ways," says O'Connor. "This is a great way to be introduced to topics, but spending time learning outside of the classroom, and receiving individualized instruction, provides students with the personalized learning that they need." For those who can't afford tutoring sessions, O'Connor suggest parents look into the variety of af-

jobs & education

often my advice is to pursue one particular project with a great degree of passion. Increasingly, there's this incredible network of nonprofit journalistic institutions that are helping to support writers with these kind of projects.

After completing all of your research, how do you sift through the information and actually begin writing?
I'm someone who is overly obsessive with my process and reports 50 times the amount of material I actually need. I always sit down and make a list of the five core things that I can't live without in the story, and then I figure out how they are connected and how I'm going to weave them together.

What's the most crucial skill for young journalists to develop?
It takes an incredible amount of persistence. You can't be willing to give up at the first rejection or to let a story go by the wayside because you're not making immediate headway. It's also crucial for journalists to have an open mind. I came at this as somebody who trained in anthropology and ethnography, and part of the fundamentals of that field is recognizing that it takes a deep investment of time and care to try to even begin to scratch the surface of another person's world.

Are there any books or authors you would recommend ?
Katherine Boo is my absolute hero when it comes to narrative journalism. She's someone who writes with such granular, obsessive compassion and detail, and spends a lot of time with sources, getting to know the ins and outs of their lives. David Grann is also another masterful storyteller. In terms of books, "Telling True Stories" has been a really helpful guide both for me and for my students.

fordable or free resources in their area, such as the Boys and Girls Club of America, or ask their child's teacher to set aside time in the morning for extra help.

Monitor down time

While homework and study time is important, a student's schedule should also incorporate breaks. "Understanding when a student likes downtime and TV time helps parents set a schedule of when it's best to sprinkle it in," says O'Connor. Charting out a time slots for fun helps parents maintain control, while making sure that their child is not overly stressed — something that can ultimately detract from their learning.

Support your child's academic success

For many students, preparing for tests can be a challenge, which is why it's important for parents to offer frequent encouragement. "Giving positive feedback and celebrating academic successes along the way helps children believe in themselves and feel more prepared," says O'Connor. For even more support, O'Connor suggests parents help their children study at home by testing them with flash cards. SARA FEINSTEIN

Giants hang on, best Eagles and their fourth down woes

New York moves to 5-3 after a big win at home Sunday.

EVAN MACY
@evan_macy
evan.macy@metro.us

Odell Beckham Jr. struck the Eagles early with a first-quarter TD. GETTY IMAGES

Eli Manning was the story for the Giants Sunday, as the two-time Super Bowl champ fired off four touchdown passes on 22-for-36 passing, tallying 257 yards in a win that moves New York to 5-3 on the year.

He didn't do it himself, as was clearly visible to anyone watching the Week 9 showdown. His defense bailed him out — quite a few times.

Eagles rookie quarterback Carson Wentz had a career-high in yards on the other sideline, compiling 364 but he won't be the story on Philly talk radio this week. Instead it was head coach Doug Pederson, who peculiarly went for it twice on fourth and short in the fourth quarter, opting not to take three points in both situations — each costing Philly big time in the loss moving the team to 4-4.

In the key Philly drive with seven minutes on the clock, a dropped Nelson Agholor pass on third down forced Pederson to go for it on fourth-and-nine. Jordan Matthews converted the third fourth down try for the Eagles on a pass right over the middle to keep the drive alive. Caleb Sturgis hit a 39-yard field goal to cut the Giants lead to 28-23 with just under four minutes to play.

With the Giants ready run down the clock inside the two-minute warning, a tipped pass by Connor Barwin ended up in Jordan Hicks' hands — the interception setting Wentz up one more time with the chance to make a game-winning march.

Fittingly, it took a fourth fourth-down try for the Eagles to keep their hopes alive but Wentz's fade toss to Matthews in the corner of the Eagles' end zone hit the turf and that was that.

Wentz threw two interceptions in the first quarter for the second time in three games. But unlike in their defensively dominant win over the Vikings in Week 7, the Giants turned both turnovers into points, with touchdown passes to Odell Beckham Jr., and then to Roger Lewis.

The picks made by Landon Collins and Andrew Adams put the Giants up 14-0, and after two long drives from Philly resulted in a chip shot field goal and missed fourth-and-two try, New York was up 14-3 and rolling. The ugly fourth-down play was a designed Wentz run that lost 5 yards, and lost Philly possession.

But the Eagles defense settled down getting a couple key stops and Wentz eventually found his groove as well, connecting on a deep bomb to newly activated rookie Bryce Treggs for 58 yards to set up an 8-yard Ryan Matthews run to cut things to 14-10.

The Giants got their lead back to two scores midway through the second, finishing an 86-yard drive with a second TD pass to ODB in the back of the end zone.

Philly once again came away with zero points on a short field a drive later, when a near punt return for a touchdown by Darren Sproles resulted in another red zone fourth-down try — this one a failed Sproles scamper.

A leaping Jason Pierre-Paul block of a Sturgis field goal try took more points off the board and shifted momentum to New York's side.

The Giants failed on their own fourth-and-short try, and the two rivals went to the locker room with a 21-10 spread.

After a short break, the Eagles came out with energy on offense, plowing downfield thanks to a big Sproles run and big catches by Agholor and Matthews, setting up a Kenjon Barner touchdown run to cut the Giants lead to 21-17.

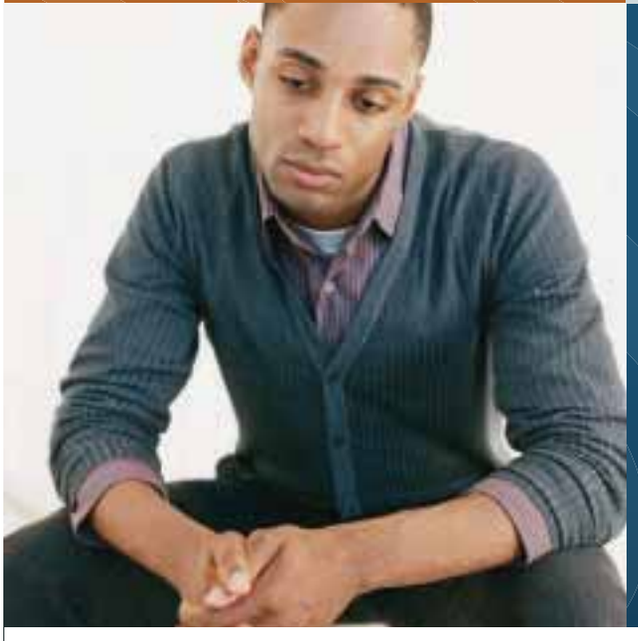

The Giants' energy was just as high on their ensuing drive, as Sterling Shepherd beat Malcolm Jenkins deep catching a 32-yard bomb to up the lead, once again to 11 points.

The Eagles cut it to a one possession game after more impressive offense, driving deep into Giants territory before settling for a field goal and 28-20 deficit. They after a few first down runs from Paul Perkins, Nolan Carroll III ripped a pass out of Beckham's chest for an interception. The turnover didn't lead to much offense for Philly, which went three-and-out.

Jets find new ways to lose in Miami

The Jets couldn't figure out their AFC East rivals in a painful Week 9 setback.

TONY WILLIAMS
@TBone8
sports@metro.us

The Jets lost in the most Jets' way possible in a stunning 27-23 defeat to the Miami Dolphins.

The fact the Jets (3-6) lost to the Dolphins (4-4) wasn't the shocking point, although Gang Green had enjoyed recent success playing in Miami. But it was how New York managed to snatch defeat from the jaws of victory.

Neither team played as if they wanted to win this game, as the contest was marred by penalties and questionable play calling. But when the Dolphins needed to make a play and snatch this win out of the Jets' hands, they found a way. It was a weird game with little ebb and flow, as neither squad was able capitalize on the other's mistakes — particularly in the fourth quarter.

A microcosm of the afternoon came midway through the final stanza. New York quarterback Ryan Fitzpatrick was picked off in the end zone with seven minutes remaining in the game on a misread third-down attempt with only rookie Robbie Anderson in the area. Surprisingly, the erroneous throw didn't hurt Gang Green, as the Dolphins went three-and-out on the ensuing series, which culminated in punter Matt Darr's flubbed catch on the snap on the very next play at Miami's 18-yard line. It set up Jalin Marshall's first-career touchdown, two plays later — an 18-yard grab with 5:42 remaining, which gave Gang Green hope they'd escape with a win.

The Jets are stuck in last place in the AFC East. GETTY IMAGES

It seemed the Jets were primed for its third-straight win and maybe get back into the AFC's wild card race. But Jets' things happened on the ensuing kickoff, as rookie Kenyan Drake went 96 yards for the eventual game-winning touchdown following an offsides penalty against safety Antonio Allen on the previous kickoff attempt.

The Dolphins got a new lease on life, Drake took it to the house, and it essentially buried the Jets' hopes of making an amazing second-half playoff surge. Linebacker Julian Stanford sealed Gang Green's fate on the next Miami possession with a pass interference call while guarding backup tight end Dominique Jones on third-and-1 near midfield, with the Jets clinging to minimal hope.

Aries Don't wait for someone else to take charge. Step up and do your thing. A positive change will surprise someone from your past. A new opportunity is apparent.

Taurus Refuse to allow negativity and emotional stress to affect you. A creative approach coupled with kindness and understanding will be your ticket to success.

Gemini Evaluate your current personal position, and discuss what you want to do with someone you trust and respect. Only then will you be able to make the best decision.

Cancer Do your own thing. Explore creative pursuits and consider attending an event that will broaden your outlook or teach you tricks that will speed up daily chores.

Leo Verbal confrontations will not be in your best interest. Stick to the truth, but don't give the impression you know everything. You will gain more from listening.

Virgo Stay focused on what's important to you. Check out new ways of accomplishing old goals. Your persistence and ability to articulate what you want will serve you well.

Libra Work on you. Self-improvement will bring happiness and satisfaction. Trying to change others will result in disappointment and an unwanted change in relationships.

Scorpio Follow your desires, and make each moment count. Look for the good and the positive in every situation and act accordingly. Don't give in to negativity or bullying.

Sagittarius A business trip or meeting will result in an opportunity. Don't be reluctant to make suggestions. An honest and emotional response will help prevent deception.

Capricorn Don't let your emotions cost you. If you believe in what you have to offer, so will everyone you encounter. Be true to yourself, and focus on getting things done.

Aquarius Think before you speak. Letting your emotions take control will not help you get your way. A moneymaking opportunity will require finesse and patience.

Pisces A situation will require an intellectual, rather than physical, response. Protect yourself against being hurt or used by someone who has ulterior motives. EUGENIA LAST
